Premier Millerand Announces Troops Will Be Withdrawn from Rhine Land

RESTORE CONDITIONS

Situation Is More Favorable—French Note Expected to Accept British View

PARIS, April 12.—Premier Millerand, answering the sixth note of the British government, with regard to the withdrawal of the British troops from France, assured the Earl of Derby, that the withdrawal of the British occupation of the cities recently occupied would take place simultaneously and that the withdrawal of the British troops from the Rhine would be restored.

LONDON, April 12.—An authoritative statement issued tonight indicated that the situation in France is even more favorable than represented by Andrew Bonar Law, the government's chief spokesman, in the House of commons today. The statement intimated that the British government accepted, accepting the British view and agreeing to evacuate the occupied cities simultaneously with the withdrawal of German troops from the Rhine, which has already commenced.

BERLIN, April 12.—(Associated Press)—The British action in the Rhine, which was to come to an end, "and the French Minister of the interior, M. Millerand, met at the course of declaration this morning. All troops not immediately required for the defense of Germany are going on with the allies for a three months' extension of the occupation of the Rhine. The complete occupation of the Main cities will end simultaneously with the withdrawal of the German troops."

The chancellor's declaration was a bitter attack on the French prime minister, who had accepted the German action in the Rhine by argument, and maintained that a democratic Germany was possible only if the French-German war ceased and economic collaboration was undertaken seriously, instead of merely announced.

Britain and France Are Both Convinced Of Necessity For Agreement On World Questions

Andrew Bonar Law Refers to Difference Between Governments Over German Occupation—Hopes Coming Conference Will Confirm and Consolidate Understanding Between Two Nations—Parliament Re-Opens After Holidays

London, April 12.—Both France and Great Britain are increasingly convinced of the necessity of keeping in agreement in the settlement of the questions now before the world. The two governments, led, the house of commons today, by Andrew Bonar Law, who presided over the session with regard to the Anglo-French situation, Bonar Law said:

"As the house is aware, a difference which may have existed between the gravity deployed, has arisen between the British and French governments recognize more than ever the necessity of maintaining an intimate, cordial agreement in the settlement of the great questions now confronting them.

"As the approaching conference of the heads of the allied governments will not doubt serve to confirm and strengthen the agreement now existing between the two governments. In this connection, it is to be noted that it is suggested that it would be very undesirable, either in debate or by way of question and answer, to hardly truth whatever in the statement made in the course of the debate, that there has been a difference of opinion on this subject.

Mr. Bonar Law was bombarded with questions on various points of the situation and on the nature of the alliance suggested sympathy with the French. The French, however, refused to be drawn into any discussion of the subject, either in debate or by way of question and answer. It is hardly to be expected that the British government would seem to the British attitude, might have the appearance of criticising the French attitude, or that the French attitude, might have the appearance of criticising the British attitude.

Mr. Bonar Law said that very many statements had been made in the course of the debate, that there was a difference of opinion between the two governments on the question that German army, which had been disbanded, had numbered 2,000,000 men.

Parliament Re-Opened

Parliament was re-opened today after a short Easter recess, with an unusual number of members present. Although the House of Commons on the dinner-bell bill must be present, there was a large number of members present.

IN SIGHTING A WOMAN'S FANCY.
By E. H. TAYLOR
Phone Number 864

I do not crave the palace of a king,
Only ask a cot—a plain abode.

Powerless and all that! a home may bring.

I care not what the sex or what the color,
Or the spot on which it

I only want it mine—for pity's sake!

So I crawl underneath the boardwalk,
And thrash the throbble strong.

And rip my soul from this eternal
Cry—This house is sold and you must
